Again a flock of fashion folk descended on Bobo, in New York City, this time for an intimate dinner hosted by ASmallWorld (a socialite-networking site of sorts) and Volkswagen to honor Andy Spade, Maria Cornejo, Alice Temperley, and Antony Todd. “They are all established designers. In these recession-hit times, we wanted to choose designers with substance,” explains ASW’s Sabine Heller of the eclectic mix of honorees as she greeted guests including Byrdie Bell, Veronica Webb, and ThreeAsFour crew Ange, Gabi, and Adi, who arrived with Björk. Poppy Delevingne and Sophia Hesketh chatted over cocktails before heading to find a seat for dinner with Julia Restoin-Roitfeld and Alice Temperley. “I grew up on a utopian cider farm in Somerset,” the Brit designer says of her rural roots. On another table, Melissa Bent chatted to gallerist Amy Greenspon over dinner, while Ann Dexter-Jones flitted about the room. During dessert, actor and jewelry designer Waris Ahluwalia revealed another talent—joke telling—as he regaled stylists Natasha Royt and Lauren Goodman with one joke after another: “Why does Snoop Dogg carry an umbrella? For drizzle.”
